CI (or CE) Familiarization Course

1. Attached is a very tentative outline for the proposed CI (or CE) Familiarization Course. As I see it now the introduction could and should be handled in less than a day so that the students get down to work straight away. The first afternoon I would hope to move into Procedures and after a relatively brief introduction (perhaps a half hour at most) to this subject put the students to work on a practical exercise. This section, as I see it now, is the meat of the course. Probably because it is so important I am finding it rather hard to organize in reasonable fashion and am not yet satisfied with the outline. It may work itself out as I get down to the matter of drawing up practical exercises and selecting case material.

2. I have not got far enough along as yet to tell how much allowance will have to be made for handling the course on two levels. It is even possible that the exercises might be good enough so they could be given to the "chiefs" as well as to the "Indians"; if not, we might be able to use situation-type questions for the supervisors, but that is a bridge I am not prepared to cross just yet.
